FAQ

16 September 2006

Question: The Maintenance Agreement files appear to have some significant errors and we are not sure how to use them. As an example, the CERES Aux HW and SW files contain the same data. Also, there are no files for Deployables or Camp Parks. This is very urgent if you intend industry to cost this, or even to include in the transition plan. Therefore, we have two questions:

- 1.) What specifically does the government intend industry to do with the Maintenance Agreement Files?
- 2.) Will the government consider reviewing the files to ensure they are accurate and complete?

Response:

- 1). The Government intends industry to use the maintenance agreements to improve their understanding of what licensing agreements must be in-place by the end of the transition period (1 July 2006). The Government does not intend that industry use this information for proposal purposes.
- 2.) The Government does intend to update a file (CERES Aux HW and SW file) to correct errors. We will send updates to those organizations who received the initial distribution and others that may request them. There are no licensing issues for Deployables and Camp Parks, so no files were included.
